

One connection to reach the world

As China, one of the largest economies in the world, encourages use of their Chinese Yuan (CNY) in global trade, more small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) will need a way to make international payments to China in the local currency with speed, transparency and efficiency.

Doing business with China grows increasingly attractive as China expands opportunities for foreign trade and simplifies documentation for B2B transactions. Here's an example of how fast, cost-efficient and reliable CNY payments to China can help improve cash flow and drive productivity and growth for SMEs.

The story

Sweet Home, a U.S. interior design business located in Phoenix, Arizona, needs to pay Specialty Interior Lighting, their supplier in Beijing, China.

The need

- Payment in CNY
Foreign buyers like Sweet Home often don't maintain their own CNY bank accounts but see a growing need to pay China suppliers in local CNY currency.
- Reduced costs
Delivering funds in CNY is expensive, with correspondent banks often making extra deductions from the principal amount.
- Transparency and control
The recipient's bank often handles currency conversion and delivery speed, giving Sweet Home limited visibility and control over when funds will arrive and at what cost.
- Speed and certainty
Slow and unreliable funds delivery and clearing of local documentation hinder Sweet Home's day-to-day operations and make it challenging to manage cash flow.

The solution

Sweet Home uses their local bank to initiate payments to Specialty Interior Lighting.

Sweet Home's local bank uses Mastercard Cross-Border Services to make CNY payments to Specialty Interior Lighting.

Mastercard routes payment via the Chinese local clearing systems (CNAPS, CIPS, CFXPS, CUP).

Specialty Interior Lighting's experience

SPEED, PREDICTABILITY AND CERTAINTY
Documentation for Specialty Interior Lighting is collected and validated by its local bank. Upon approval, Specialty Interior Lighting receives CNY payment directly to their bank account in near real-time.

The result

- Cost-efficient conversion to CNY
With no need to create their own CNY bank account, Sweet Home can pay Specialty Interior Lighting in CNY with no deductions from the principal amount.
- Increased confidence and control
Sweet Home knows all costs up front and can track funds delivery in near real-time, providing much-needed visibility.
- Fast processing, improved efficiency
Simplified documentation speeds up payment processing. Funds are released in near real-time when payment instructions are received during Chinese business hours.
- Improved cash flow management
Sweet Home has an easier time managing cash flow and predicting costs, allowing them to be more productive and to focus on growing their business.
